BIG STRIKE OF MINERS IN DISTRICT THREATENS TO TIE UP OPERATIONS

UNION OFFICERS AND OPERATORS HOLD CONFERENCE

Expected Meeting To-day Will Be Final and General Order to Men to Quit Work May Follow.

FIRM STAND TAKEN BY THE EMPLOYEES

A strike of the 40,000 miners of the Pittsburgh district may take place July 4. An all-day session of representatives of the operators was held yesterday in the Lewis building, in Pittsburg, and a conference between a committee and the district officers of the mine workers will be held today. If it fails to reach an agreement a strike will be ordered under the name of a "suspension," the miners' union having stricken the word "strike" from their constitution. President Francis Feehan of the district organization of the miners said last night that an ultimatum had been submitted to the operators, and that the men would be ordered to cease work unless its terms were complied with and that the Fourth would be a very good day to stop work.

Although a general contract was signed between the miners and the operators in April, there have since remained a number of unsettled questions in the Pittsburgh district, and negotiations continued since then have failed to settle them. The district agreement in force expires today and it is on this account the situation has come to be considered as serious. The miners, confident in their strength, are determined to secure concessions, they have never had before.

The thing which the operators profess to regard as the most objectionable is the demand of the miners that they shall collect dues for the union from their mine employees to an unlimited amount and turn them over to the officers of the men. They are already doing this to the extent of 25 cents from each two week's pay for each miner, but the agreement limits it to this, while the union demands that it shall be allowed to make the dues whatever it pleases and the operators must collect and turn them over.

President Feehan said the matter of dues is overshadowed by the question of dead work and narrow work scales. Other questions which are undecided are the abolition of back-action dumps, abolition of equivalent tonnage, outside day wages, Hocking Valley conditions, abolition of charge of three-fourths of a cent for machine mining, abolition of deductions for company physicians, which is $1.00 a month, and reduction of charge for smithing from 1 1-2 to 1 cent on the dollar.

It is claimed that the demand for a suspension, unless the operators grant the terms of the union, is general in the district.

Miss Anna Murdock left this morning for Atlantic City, where she will spend a few weeks with friends.

DONORA LICENSE TOO HIGH

Webster people are not particularly strong for carnivals. The company which exhibited in Charleroi last week, it is said, was intending going to Donora for a week's engagement, but balked at the high license fee. Webster, across the river, looked good, but the management reckoned without his host, and when they were to put up there, were subjected to the annoyance of being driven from the town, the argument on the part of the Webster people being almost punctuated by a few straight shoulder Jeffries jabs, and uppercuts. Finally the management realized that the company was not wanted, and left it is said for some points in the west.

The Deadly House Fly

Health Officer William Darby of the local board of health, desires to issue a note of warning to house-keepers in regard to the deadly house fly, or the typhoid fly, as it is called in sanitary circles. Mr. Darby has been active in protecting the public from this pest by requiring the grocers and fruit dealers to protect food products they display for sale from contact with flies, and the most of the dealers are taking the precautions suggested. It is in the homes now that the most protection is needed. Born and nurtured in filth and offal, the house fly from the very start begins its work of carrying disease germs and distributing them over the food products of the multi-tude. A fly's sticky feet have been shown by the microscope to contain a million or more deadly microbes, enough to spread disease and contagion in a whole community. It is stated authoritatively that flies kill more people than beasts of prey and poisonous serpents combined, and many of the diseases attributed to impure milk and water are due to the festive house fly.

What Health Officer Darby wants to impress upon the public is not to allow any flies in the house. Don't buy food products from places where flies are tolerated, nor permit the insects to come in contact with food in the house, particularly milk. In homes where there is a baby extra care should be taken to keep flies from coming in contact with it. More infantile summer diseases are caused by flies than by any other source. By the use of screens flies can be kept from the homes, and there are numerous means of destroy- ing those that gain admittance. By observing these precautions many cases of sickness can be prevented.

Tener Was Paired

With much glee the Washington Observer reproduces an article from the Philadelphia North American, with comments of its own, charging Congressman J. K. Tener with dodg- ing the vote in Congress on certain measures asked for by organized labor. As usual the Observer and Mr. Tener's detractors either pur- posefully ignored or made no effort to get at the facts of the case, and consequently made statements that are absolutely false. Had the Observer made an effort to get at the facts it would have found that Mr. Tener was paired with Repre- sentative Taylor of Alabama for the bills in question. All that anyone has to do to prove this is to search the Congressional records.

It Might Have Been

Like the youthful Napoleon II, son of the great Emperor, who played with toy soldiers and dreamed of emu- lating the military glory of his illas- trious father, the Washington Observer juggles with election statistics and political contingencies, and takes comfort in formulating possible coalitions that might encompass the defeat of the Republican party in general and of John K. Tener in particular. Before the Democrats made their nomination for Governor the Observer had it doped out how a certain candidate was sure to be nominated who would be triumphantly elected and make the Republican party look like thirty cents. The Democrats did not see fit to nominate the Observer's candidate, and the omission was laid at the door of Mulvihill. The Observer announced that John K. Tener was not considered seriously as a candidate for Governor, but he somehow pulled down the plum, and again it was Mulvihill who did it.

Now the Observer wants an inde- pendent candidate for Governor, and it already has the dope figured as to how such a ticket can win. The Prohibi- tion candidate for Governor was an- other disappointment to the Observer, which has now abandoned local option and is in for "anything to beat Grant." Then, after the November election, the Observer will sorrow- fully inform its readers that "Mulvi- hill did it."

ELECTRIC SPARKS

If the people think this is warm weather, just imagine what the poor fellow who is chief coal heaver in the region of eternal heat must consider it.

The main thing for a man to have when he wants to run for office is nerve. A little money is also nec- essary.

The Republicans of the 24th Con- gressional district had better hire a clerk to keep tab on all the persons whose names are mentioned as pos- sible successors to Congressman J. K. Tener.

One of the most noticeable things about commencement is that all the young people harp on success, and how to succeed.

Some men are so peculiar that they would rather lose $30 playing poker than give their wives $10 with which to buy a hat.

We know of a preacher who gets in the neighborhood of $20,000 a year, but that doesn't say that he is entitled to any better place in heaven than some of us mortals who only make $1.50 per.

Of course neither Johnston or Jeff- ries could be expected to last two rounds before a man of Roosevelt's caliber.

An intoxicated young man, very much battered up, went into a hotel about midnight and asked the clerk for room 23. "Can't give you that one," replied the clerk, "It's taken." "Who's got it?" asked the intoxicated one. "A man named Jones." "What Jones?" Mr. A. B. Jones has room 23. The battered up young man smiled. "Zats all right," he said. "Zat's me. I fell out the window."—Denver Post.

The difference between tonsil-cy- tis and sore throat is that you pay a doctor for one and doctor yourself for the other.

The Bride's Troubles.

It was the servant's day out, and the young bride was doing her best to hurry along the dinner she was trying to cook. The husband, tired of wait- ing, bustled into the kitchen and said impatiently:

"You know, we'll be late for the the- ater if you don't hurry dinner."
"Well," sighed the bride, "I can't tell what's the matter, but these cof- fee grains simply won't boil soft, and as for the eggs, they've been boiling at least two hours, and they're still as hard as ever."

But the dinner was concluded at last, and then the young husband de- clared he couldn't find his silk hat.
"Oh," exclaimed his wife, "you said it needed ironing, you know, so I sent it this morning to the laundry with the wash."

Settling the Barber.

"Hair's a bit thin on the top, sir," remarked the barber. "Won't you try a bottle of our hair restorer?"

The victim squirmed. "You made the same observation last week," he said, "and I expressed my desire to see you try the stuff on the doormat."

"Sorry, I didn't know you had been here before, sir," replied the barber as he went on shaving. "I didn't recog- nize your face."

"No," was the growling reply; "my face has healed since then."—London News.

Couldn't Hear Them.

"I've been worried about my hearing for some time," said a local banker, who tells the story on himself, "and finally the fear of getting deaf became a sort of obsession to me, and I decided to go over to New York to consult a specialist. I got over there and went to see the doctor, and he looked so grave I was more scared than ever, and I was feeling pretty blue as I walked down Fifth avenue with a friend.

"Suddenly I saw two 'special trolleys' coming down a cross street filled with children waving flags and apparently having an awfully good time, but I couldn't hear a sound. In an instant, without stopping to realize that I could hear all the other noises of the traffic and my friend's voice, I turned around and seized him by the arm and shouted:

"Heavens, Jo, I'm deaf! I can't hear those children at all."
"Neither can I," said my friend, with a roar of laughter. "They're mutes."—Philadelphia Times.

The Rod and the Child.

I do not believe in the government of the lash. If any one of you ever expects to whip your children again I want you to have a photograph taken of yourself when you are in the act,
with your face red with vulgar anger and the face of the little child, with eyes swimming in tears and the little child dimpled with fear, like a piece of water struck by a sudden cold wind.
Have the picture taken. If that little child should die I cannot think of a sweeter way to spend an autumn afternoon than to go out to the cemetery when the maples are clad in tender gold and little scarlet runners are coming, like poems of regret, from the sad heart of the earth and sit down upon the grave and look at that photograph and think of the flesh, now dust, that you beat. I tell you it is wrong; it is no way to raise children. Make your home happy. Be honest with them.
Divide fairly with them in everything.
—Robert G. Ingersoll.

Started in Business.

"Father thinks I ought to go in for business a bit," remarked the glided youth.

"Made a start yet?"

ness suits and had me name put up at a commercial club."—Louisville Countier-Journal.

A Modest Request.

An impeccably dressed gentleman
the other day when walking along Pecadilly felt a movement in his pocket and, clapping his hand thereto, seized the wrist of the thief. He drew forth the erring member, and, looking at it with supreme disgust, he released
it, saying, with a grimace of disgust,
"For heaven's sake, my good man, go and wash your hands before you put them in a gentleman's pocket again!"—
London Tatler.

Made Him Feel Old.

"What's the matter?"
"Oh, nothing much."
"But you look as if you had something serious on your mind."
"Well, if you insist on knowing, a boy who was named after me has just become engaged to be married. How time flies!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Dollar Mark.

"Have you seen the Washington monument?"
"Yes," replied the New Yorker. "It's a pretty tall building, but what's the good of it without any offices for rent?"
—Washington Star.

Economy.

Husband—Excuse me, dear, but don't you cook much more for dinner than we can use? Wife—Of course! If I didn't how could I economize by utilizing leftover dishes?—Cleveland Leader

Not New.

ery. It is as old as the flood."
"How do you make that out?"
"Why, didn't Noah have to have ark lights?"

blot in the heart.—Cervantes.

is growing? Mrs. Doyle—Yes; he is pretty large for his mother's age.—
Judge.

Evolution.

said to belong to the vegetable kingdom? When experience has made him

Mr. Henpeck—I hear that young Jones and his wife are not getting along very well. Mrs. Henpeck (authoritatively)—Jones should never have married when he did. He was too young to realize the step he was taking. Mr. Henpeck—Yes, I know. But I like the boy. We have many things in common.

The Maid's Reply.

he whispered:
"Darling, if I should ask you in French if I might kiss you what would you answer?"
She, calling up her scanty knowledge of the French language, exclaimed,

There Should.

Fritz, the gardener, was a stolid German who was rarely moved to extraordinary language. Even the most provocative occasions only caused him to remark mildly on his ill luck. Not long ago he came back from the city in the late evening after a hard day in the market place. He was sleepy, and the train being crowded, the baggage man gave him a chair in his roomy car.

Finally the train reached Bloomfield. Fritz still slept as it pulled in, and his friend had to shake him and tell him where he was.

"I thank you," said Fritz as he rose slowly to his feet. The open door of the car was directly in front of him. He walked straight out of it.

The baggage man sprang to look after him. Fritz slowly picked himself up from the sand by the side of the track, looked up at the door and said with no wrath in his voice:

"There should here be some steps."

—Youth's Companion.

A Wonderful Feat.

In its review of Pierre de Vassiere's book "Le Mort du Roi" the Muenster Nachrichten dwells upon the account of the last seven minutes of Louis XVI, as described in the book. These were between 10:15, when the king arrived at the foot of the guillotine, and 10:22, "when a shot fired at the end of the Champs Elysees, no one knows by whom, gave notice that the head had fallen." The review calls attention to the statement by the author that the king's hands had been pinioned behind him by the executioner while Louis was putting on the coat which he was to wear at the end and that when he reached the platform of the instrument of death he rushed unassisted to the upright farthest from the stairway, "slapping the face of one of the assistant executioners who tried to stop him." With hands fastened at his back, the reviewer asks, "How did the doomed monarch manage to perform the operation?"

Etiquette by Precedent.

For example of how men may live and act according to precedent there can be no better reference than to the lord chamberlain's office in London. There in quiet rooms day after day men learned in state etiquette, court dress and royal functions reach down heavy volumes to see what was done on such and such an occasion. Beautiful pictures showing with minute exactness the details of the court costume under various circumstances are ready to their hands. Is the shah of Persia coming? Is the kaiser soon to arrive? Is the king going to receive the monarch of Siam? Is one of the royal princesses to be married? When any of these events happens the officials at the lord chamberlain's office know exactly what to do. And if some point should crop up which has not been raised for a century or more they have the faithful official records as to what was done on the last like occasion.

Eccentricities in Palaces.

The Russian Empress Anne built a great palace of ice and on occasions when the fancy seized her punished several of her dainty courtiers by compelling them to pass the night in this great chamber of state, where they were almost frozen to death.

The Czar Paul constructed a room formed entirely of huge mirrors which he spent hours walking to and fro in full uniform—a singular taste for the ugliest man in Russia.

One of the native princes of Java cooled his palace by making a stream-fall in a cascade over the gateway, and the Indian despot Tipu Sahib placed beside his dinner table a life size figure of a tiger devouring an English officer, the roar of the beast and the shrieks of the victim being imitated by hidden machinery.

The River Tinto.

There is in Spain a river called the Tinto, which has very extraordinary qualities. Its waters, which are as yellow as a topaz, harden the sand and petrify it in a most surprising manner. If a stone falls into the river and rests upon another they both become perfectly united and conglutinated in a year. It withers all the plants on its banks as well as the roots of trees, which it dyes of the same hue as its waters. No fish live in its stream.

A Creature From the Fire.

Aristotle believed that some creatures were capable of supporting life even though confined to the devouring element. He says: "In Cyprus, when the manufacturers of chaletis (limes) burn it many days in the fire, a winged creature something larger than a great fly is seen emerging from the stone and leaping and walking about in the fire. These creatures perish immediately upon being removed from the furnace."

Before and After.

The Adorer—It's wonderful, old man, what love will enable a fellow to see in a girl that he never saw before. The Onlooker—No doubt, but it's equally wonderful what it won't let him see that he'll see later.

Biblical Instruction.

"What does exegesis mean, father?" "I can never remember long what it does mean. It is something theological—probably a combination of Exodus and Genesis, about like Deuteronomy."—Life.

Airy Persiflage.

Passenger on Aeroplane—What's that dingdonging noise? Can it be the cowbells on the Milky way? Aviator—No; that's only Saturn's rings.

Prosperity leads often to ambition and ambition to disappointment.

Saved by His Wit.

Lord Justice Fitzgibbon, at the time when he was one of the justices of appeals of Ireland, was holding assizes in Tipperary county when a man was brought before him on indictment for murder. The case was proved that the victim came to his death by being hit with a stick in the hands of the defendant, but the doctor testified that he had what they called in medical parlance a "paper skull."

The case looked dark for the prisoner, however, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty. As the man was brought before the court for sentence it was noticed that his lordship had his black cap in his hand.

"Have you anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced upon you?" demanded Lord Fitzgibbon.

The man looked for a moment and then said, "No, your lordship, I have nothing to say, but I should like to ask one question."

"What is that, my man?" said Fitzgibbon.

"I should like to know what a man with a head like that was doing in Tipperary?"

The black cap was put away and a prison sentence imposed.

"If."

Joseph Chamberlain, the English statesman, was once indebted to a nursery rhyme for a great oratorical hit. In one of his speeches he was criticising Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury on their return from Berlin, where they had been carrying on negotiations with Bismarck. Both had made speeches explaining their actions, and one of them in the course of his oratory used the word "if" so many times as to give Mr. Chamberlain a chance in his reply to make one of those popular allusions which are remembered longer than any logic.

"What the honorable gentleman has said," he remarked, "reminds me of a rhyme I learned from my nurse:

"If all the seas were bread and cheese,
If all the rivers were ink,
If all the lakes were currant cakes,
What should we have to drink?"

The effect on the audience was tremendous. No one ever forgot that "if."

Marriage Marts.

The famous Tunis marriage mart is held twice a year, in the spring and in the autumn. The Tunisian girls attend by the hundreds, each with her dowry in coin and jewelry disposed about her person. The "golden girdle of maidenhood" encircles her waist, and in it is an unsheathed dagger. When the dagger is gently removed by a passing gallant and presently returned, it means that a proposal has been made.

A prettier custom prevails among the Ooroon maids, who, at stated intervals, assemble in the market place. In front of each is a lighted lamp, an emblem of conjugal fidelity. A young man feels attracted and gently blows upon the flame, extinguishing it. When the girl rebuffs it, it is a rejection; if she allows the lamp to go unlighted, however, the suitor is acceptable.

Wise Elephants.

Elephants, those animal sages that are constantly changing keepers, become so wise and know so much about the tricks of the trade and human nature in general that they finally will not work for any man. It is doubtful if there is a bull elephant more than fifty years old performing in this country. They have not "gone bad," as the showmen say, but have learned too much, picked up from their keepers, and they cannot be worked with safety. An elephant that is going to make trouble turns his back on his intended victim and begins to swing his great body from side to side. Then in a flash he wheels, catches the offender with his trunk and buries him perhaps twenty feet away, following swiftly to crush the life from his body with his mighty knees.

An Essay on Cats.

A schoolboy wrote an essay on cats. The chapter on different breeds supplies the following information:

"Cats that's made for little boys and girls to maul and tease is called Maltese cats. Some cats is known by their queer purrs—these are called Persian cats. Cats with very bad tempers is called Angorrie cats. Sometimes a very fine cat is called a Magnificat. Cats with deep feelin's is called Felina cats."—Exchange.

Estimated in Money.

"Tommy," said the boss, "you quit smoking two or three months ago, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir," answered the office boy.

"How much have you gained in weight?"

"Well, sir, countin' it in nickels, I reckon I've gained about four pounds."

—Chicago Tribune.

Diplomacy.

She longed for a new hat. So she began to worry her husband for a new dress.

"U—A new dress! Can't afford it. If you wanted gloves or a new hat I wouldn't mind. But a new dress!"

"She—Well, don't get flurried, dearest. You know I always give in. So just buy me a new hat."

The Other's Pet.

Neighbor—How did that naughty little boy of yours get hurt? Ditto—That good little boy of yours bit him in the head with a brick.—Independent.

The Firstborn.

Visitor—My! What a fine baby! How much does he weigh? Fond Mother—I really don't know. He hasn't been weighed since noon.—Life.

Happiness is an equivalent for all troublesome things.—Epictetus.

Tuberculosis Often Develops From Pneumonia

Consumption readily attacks those who have pneumonia. Many sufferers from tuberculosis give a history of having had pneumonia. The lungs thus weakened are more easily attacked by the germ that causes consumption.

For all those with "weak lungs," especially those who have had pneumonia, Eckman's Alternative is the appropriate remedy. Cures of consumption are accomplished by Eckman's Alternative. But take it in time. There is no wisdom in waiting until Tuberculosis is established. Health is never fully valued until sickness comes.

"I wish I had known of Eckman's Alternative two years ago. Since taking it I have gained twenty-eight pounds and I cannot but be very thankful to you and the Almighty God for the great blessing and change of health it has brought me."

Why the Wind Waits.

In his book on "The Picturesque St. Lawrence" Clifton Johnson tells of the curious superstition of Montreal which explains why the wind is always blowing at the point where St. Sulpice and Notre Dame streets meet, close by the towering cathedral.

It seems that one day, while the church was in process of building, the Wind and the Devil were walking down Notre Dame street, and the Devil after regarding with a frown of disapproval the graceful outlines of the new edifice rising before him exclaimed:

"What is this? I never saw it before."

"Very likely not," responded the Wind, "and I dare you to go in there." "You dare me to go that, do you?" cried the Devil, with a sneer. "Well, I will go in if you will promise to wait here until I come out."

"Agreed," said the Wind. So his satanic majesty went in. But he has not come out yet, and the Wind is still waiting for him at the corner.

The Spirit of Liberty.

It was in the town that modern democracy had its rise. Despite all the efforts of the kings and barons to prevent it, the spirit of liberty began to assert itself in the larger towns in the shape of the charters which guaranteed to the people certain commercial and political rights--rights which, once obtained, were never to be surrendered. Before the middle of the eleventh century there were many of these "chartered" towns which possessed the right of electing their own magistrates, sheriffs and judges and regulating their own taxes. The wretched serfs from the country were welcomed by the townspeople and aided to larger freedom. These free towns were first known in Spain, from which country they slowly spread over Europe. The burgesses naturally offered protection and freedom to all who would flee to them from the feudal estates, and thus slowly, but surely, the good work went on until the ancient despotisms were destroyed.--Arena.

Reptiles That Walk Erect.

Lizards of several sorts can walk and run easily on their hind legs. The Australian water lizard, which is three or four feet in length, keeps quite erect when traversing long distances on land. It is found in the neighborhood of river banks and passes much of its time in shallow water.

The frilled lizard of Queensland also travels on its hind legs on level ground, keeping the frill folded when running. When attacked it expands this fold of skin, which stands out like a ruff at right angles round the neck, giving it a most formidable aspect, so that dogs that attack and kill larger lizards will often retreat before a frilled lizard at bay.

Helped Out the Gunner.

Gadebusch, in the grand duchy of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, in celebration of the birth of a grand ducal heir decided to fire the regulation salute of 101 guns. An ancient cannon was hauled out for the purpose, and the firing began. Unfortunately the powder ran short after the ninety-third shot, and there was no means of obtaining any more in the town. The burgomaster was in despair, especially as ninety-three shots indicated that the grand ducal baby was a girl. At this moment the municipal bandmaster came forward with a luminous proposal, which was eagerly accepted. He dispatched his big drum major to the market place, where he struck eight powerful strokes on his instrument to make up the 101 shots, and thus the situation was saved.--London Standard.

Malayan Tree Dwellers.
The Sakais, or tree dwellers, of the Malay peninsula build their houses in forked trees a dozen feet above ground and reach them by means of bamboo ladders, which they draw up when safely housed out of harm's way. The house itself is a rude kind of shack made of bamboo, and the flooring is lashed together piece by piece and bound securely to the tree limbs by rattan. These curious people are rather small and lighter in complexion than the Malays, though much uglier. They have no form of religion at all--not even idols--no written language and speak a corrupt form of Malay.

Ready For the Next One.
A generous and brave but very eccentric Virginia planter named Hill Carter, who had once been an officer in the United States navy, had a hand to hand battle at Blenheim one day with his plantation overseer and came off second best. He therefore challenged the overseer to a formal duel, but the latter declined on the ground that, being a husband and father, he was under obligation not to risk leaving his family destitute. Carter at once removed that objection by settling upon the family a comfortable annuity. Then everything was got ready for the fight, but just as the two men faced each other the sheriff arrived on the scene, took them into custody and had them bound over to keep the peace. Mr. Carter did not, however, change the deed of gift with which he had provided for the overseer's family, remarking that he might wish some time to resume the interrupted fight and hence would rather keep everything in readiness for prompt action.--New York Post.

UNION OFFICERS AND OPERATORS HOLD CONFERENCE

Expected Meeting To-day Will Be Final and General Order to Men to Quit Work May Follow.

FIRM STAND TAKEN BY THE EMPLOYEES

A strike of the 40,000 miners of the Pittsburgh district may take place July 4. An all-day session of representatives of the operators was held yesterday in the Lewis building, in Pittsburgh, and a conference between a committee and the district officers of the mine workers will be held today. If it fails to reach an agreement a strike will be ordered under the name of a "suspension," the miners' union having stricken the word "strike" from their constitution. President Francis Feehan of the district organization of the miners said last night that an ultimatum had been submitted to the operators, and that the men would be ordered to cease work unless its terms were complied with and that the Fourth would be a very good day to stop work.

Although a general contract was signed between the miners and the operators in April, there have since remained a number of unsettled questions in the Pittsburgh district, and negotiations continued since then have failed to settle them. The district agreement in force expires today and it is on this account the situation has come to be considered as serious. The miners, confident in their strength, are determined to secure concessions, they have never had before.

The thing which the operators profess to regard as the most objectionable is the demand of the miners that they shall collect dues for the union from their mine employees to an unlimited amount and turn them over to the officers of the men. They are already doing this to the extent of 25 cents from each two week's pay for each miner, but the agreement limits it to this, while the union demands that it shall be allowed to make the dues whatever it pleases and the operators must collect and turn them over.

President Feehan said the matter of dues is overshadowed by the question of dead work and narrow work scales. Other questions which are undecided are the abolition of back-action dumps, abolition of equivalent tonnage, outside day wages, Hocking Valley conditions, abolition of charge of three fourths of a cent for machine mining, abolition of deductions for company physicians, which is $1.00 a month, and reduction of charge for smithing from 1 1/2 to 1 cent on the dollar.

It is claimed that the demand for a suspension, unless the operators grant the terms of the union, is general in the district.

Webster people are not particularly strong for carnivals. The company which exhibited in Charleroi last week, it is said, was intending going to Donora for a week's engagement, but balked at the high license fee. Webster, across the river, looks good, but the management reckons without its host, and when they were put up there, were subjected to the annoyance of being driven from the town, the argument on the part of the Webster people being almost punctuated by a few straight shoulder Jeffries jabs, and uppercuts. Finally the management realized that the company was not wanted, and left it is said for some points in the west.

The Deadly House Fly

Health Officer William Darby of the local board of health, desires to issue a note of warning to house-keepers in regard to the deadly house fly, or the typhoid fly, as it is called in sanitary circles. Mr. Darby has been active in protecting the public from this pest by requiring the grocers and fruit dealers to protect food products they display for sale from contact with flies, and the most of the dealers are taking the precautions suggested. It is in the homes, however, that the most protection is needed.

Born and nurtured in filth and offal, the house fly from the very start begins its work of carrying disease germs and distributing them over the food products of the multitude. A fly's sticky feet have been shown by the microscope to contain a million or more deadly microbes, enough to spread disease and contagion in a whole community. It is stated authoritatively that flies kill more people than beasts of prey and poisonous serpents combined, and many of the diseases attributed to impure milk and water are due to the festive house fly.

What Health Officer Darby wants to impress upon the public is not to allow any flies in the house. Don't buy food products from places where flies are tolerated, nor permit the insects to come in contact with food in the house, particularly milk. In homes where there is a baby extra care should be taken to keep flies from coming in contact with it. More infantile summer diseases are caused by flies than by any other source. By the use of screens flies can be kept from the homes, and there are numerous means of destroying these that gain admittance. By observing these precautions many cases of sickness can be prevented.

Tener Was Paired

With much glee the Washington Observer reproduces an article from the Philadelphia North American, with comments of its own, charging Congressman J. K. Tener with dodging the vote in Congress on certain measures asked for by organized labor. As usual the Observer and Mr. Tener's detractors either purposely ignored or made no effort to get at the facts of the case, and consequently make statements that are absolutely false. Had the Observer made an effort to get at the facts it would have found that Mr. Tener was paired with Representative Taylor of Alabama for the bills in question. All that anyone has to do to prove this is to search the Congressional records.

It Might Have Been

Like the youthful Napoleon II, son of the great Emperor, who played with toy soldiers and dreamed of emulating the military glory of his illustrious father, the Washington Observer

ver juggles with election statistics and political contingencies, and takes comfort in formulating possible coalitions that might encompass the defeat of the Republican party in general and of John K. Tener in particular. Before the Democrats made their nomination for Governor the Observer had it doped out how a certain candidate was sure to be nominated who would be triumphantly elected and make the Republican party look like thirty cents. The Democrats did not see fit to nominate the Observer's candidate, and the omission was laid at the door of Mulvihill. The Observer announced that John K. Tener was not considered seriously as a candidate for Governor, but he somehow pulled down the plum, and again it was Mulvihill who did it.

Now the Observer wants an independent candidate for Governor, and it already has the dope figured as to how such a ticket can win. The Prohibition candidate for Governor was another disappointment to the Observer, which has now abandoned local option and is in for "anything to beat Grant." Then, after the November election, the Observer will sorrowfully inform its readers that "Mulvihill did it."

ELECTRIC SPARKS

If the people think this is warm weather, just imagine what the poor fellow who is chief coal heaver in the region of eternal heat must consider it.

The main thing for a man to have when he wants to run for office is nerve. A little money is also necessary.

The Republicans of the 24th Congressional district had better hire a clerk to keep tab on all the persons whose names are mentioned as possible successors to Congressman J. K. Tener.

One of the most noticeable things about commencement is that all the young people harp on success, and how to succeed.

Some men are so peculiar that they would rather lose $30 playing poker than give their wives $10 with which to buy a hat.

We know of a preacher who gets in the neighborhood of $20,000 a year, but that doesn't say that he is entitled to any better place in heaven than some of us mortals who only make $1.50 per.

Of course neither Johnston or Jeffries could be expected to last two rounds before a man of Roosevelt's caliber.

An intoxicated young man, very much battered up, went into a hotel about midnight and asked the clerk for room 23. "Can't give you that one," replied the clerk. "It's taken." "Who's got it?" asked the intoxicated one. "A man named Jones." "What Jones?" Mr. A. B. Jones has room 23." The battered up young man smiled. "Zats' all right," he said. "Zat's me. I fell out the window."—Denver Post.

The difference between tonsillitis and sore throat is that you pay a doctor for one and doctor yourself for the other.

The Bride's Troubles.

It was the servant's day out, and the young bride was doing her best to hurry along the dinner she was trying to cook. The husband, tired of waiting, busted into the kitchen and said impatiently:

"You know, we'll be late for the theater if you don't hurry dinner."
"Well," sighed the bride, "I can't tell what's the matter, but these coffee grains simply won't boil soft, and as for the eggs, they've been boiling at least two hours, and they're still as hard as ever."

But the dinner was concluded at last, and then the young husband declared he couldn't find his silk hat.

"Oh," exclaimed his wife, "you said it needed ironing, you know, so I sent it this morning to the laundry with the wash."

Settling the Barber.

"Hair's a bit thin on the top, sir," remarked the barber. "Won't you try a bottle of our hair restorer?"

The victim squirmed. "You made the same observation last week," he said, "and I expressed my desire to see you try the stuff on the doormat." "Sorry; I didn't know you had been here before, sir," replied the barber as he went on shaving. "I didn't recognize your face."

"No," was the growling reply; "my face has healed since then."—London News.

Couldn't Hear Them.

"I've been worried about my hearing for some time," said a local banker, who tells the story on himself, "and finally the fear of getting deaf became a sort of obsession to me, and I decided to go over to New York to consult a specialist. I got over there and went to see the doctor, and he looked so grave I was more scared than ever, and I was feeling pretty blue as I walked down Fifth avenue with a friend.

"Suddenly I saw two 'special trolleys' coming down a cross street filled with children waving flags and apparently having an awfully good time, but I couldn't hear a sound. In an instant, without stopping to realize that I could hear all the other noises of the traffic and my friend's voice, I turned around and seized him by the arm and shouted:

"Heavens, Jo, I'm deaf! I can't hear those children at all."
"Neither can I," said my friend, with a roar of laughter. "They're mutes."—Philadelphia Times.

The Rod and the Child.

I do not believe in the government of the lash. If any one of you ever expects to whip your children again I want you to have a photograph taken of yourself when you are in the act, with your face red with vulgar anger and the face of the little child, with eyes swimming in tears and the little chin dimpled with fear, like a piece of water struck by a sudden cold wind. Have the picture taken. If that little child should die I cannot think of a sweeter way to spend an autumn afternoon than to go out to the cemetery when the maples are clad in tender gold and little scarlet runners are coming, like poems of regret, from the sad heart of the earth and sit down upon the grave and look at that photograph and think of the flesh, now dust, that you beat. I tell you it is wrong; it is no way to raise children. Make your home happy. Be honest with them. Divide fairly with them in everything. —Robert G. Ingersoll.

Started in Business.

A Modest Request.

An impeccably dressed gentleman the other day when walking along Piccadilly felt a movement in his pocket and, clapping his hand thereto, seized the wrist of the thief. He drew forth the erring member, and looking at it with supreme disgust, he released it, saying, with a grimace of disgust: "For heaven's sake, my good man, go and wash your hands before you put them in a gentleman's pocket again!"—London Tailor.

Why the Wind Waits.
In his book on "The Picturesque St. Lawrence" Clifton Johnson tells of the curious superstition of Montreal which explains why the wind is always blowing at the point where St. Sulpice and Notre Dame streets meet, close by the towering cathedral.
It seems that one day, while the church was in process of building, the Wind and the Devil were walking down Notre Dame street, and the Devil after regarding with a frown of disapproval the graceful outlines of the new edifice rising before him exclaimed:
"What is this? I never saw it before."
"Very likely not," responded the Wind, "and I dare you to go in there."
"You dare me to go in there, do you?" cried the Devil, with a sneer. "Well, I will go in if you will promise to wait here until I come out."
"Agreed," said the Wind.
So his satanic majesty went in. But he has not come out yet, and the Wind is still waiting for him at the corner.

The Spirit of Liberty.
It was in the year that modern democracy had its rise. Despite all the efforts of the kings and barons to prevent it, the spirit of liberty began to assert itself in the larger towns in the shape of the charters which guaranteed to the people certain commercial and political rights--rights which, once obtained, were never to be surrendered. Before the middle of the eleventh century there were many of these "chartered" towns which possessed the right of electing their own magistrates, sheriffs and judges and regulating their own taxes. The wretched serfs from the country were welcomed by the townspeople and added to larger freedom. These free towns were first known in Spain, from which country they slowly spread over Europe. The burgesses naturally offered protection and freedom to all who would flee to them from the feudal estates, and thus slowly, but surely, the good work went on until the ancient despotisms were destroyed.--Arena.

Reptiles That Walk Erect.
Lizards of several sorts can walk and run easily on their hind legs. The Australian water lizard, which is three or four feet in length, keeps quite erect when traversing long distances on land. It is found in the neighborhood of river banks and passes much of its time in shallow water.
The frilled lizard of Queensland also travels on its hind legs on level ground, keeping the frill folded when running. When attacked it expands this fold of skin, which stands out like a raft at right angles round the neck, giving it a most formidable aspect, so that dogs that attack and kill larger lizards will often retreat before a frilled lizard at bay.

Helped Out the Gunner.
Gadebusch, in the grand duchy of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, in celebration of the birth of a grand ducal heir decided to fire the regulation salute of 101 guns. An ancient cannon was hauled out for the purpose, and the firing began. Unfortunately the powder ran short after the ninety-third shot, and there was no means of obtaining any more in the town. The burgomaster was in despair, especially as ninety-three shots indicated that the grand ducal baby was a girl. At this moment the municipal bandmaster came forward with a lumbous proposal, which was eagerly accepted. He dispatched his big drum major to the market place, where he struck eight powerful strokes on his instrument to make up the 101 shots, and thus the situation was saved.--London Standard.

Malayan Tree Dwellers.
The Sakais, or tree dwellers, of the Malay peninsula build their houses in forked trees a dozen feet above ground and reach them by means of bamboo ladders, which they draw up when safely housed out of harm's way. The house itself is a rude kind of shack made of bamboo, and the flooring is lashed together piece by piece and bound securely to the tree limbs by rattan. These curious people are rather small and lighter in complexion than the Malays, though much uglier. They have no form of religion at all, not even idols--no written language and speak a corrupt form of Malay.

Hunting.
"Do you enjoy hunting?"
"No."

"Before I was married I generally hunted for a boarding place. Since then most of my hunting has been for flats."--Chicago Record-Herald.

Ready For the Next One.
A generous and brave but very eccentric Virginia planter owned Hill Carter, who had once been an officer in the United States navy, had a hard to hand battle at fistcuffs one day with his plantation overseer and came off second best. He therefore challenged the overseer to a formal duel, but the latter declined on the ground that, being a husband and father, he was under obligation not to risk leaving his family destitute. Carter, at once removed that objection by settling upon the family a comfortable annuity. Then everything was got ready for the fight, but just as the two men faced each other the sheriff arrived on the scene, took them into custody and had them bound over to keep the peace. Mr. Carter did not, however, change the deed of gift with which he had provided for the overseer's family, remarking that he might wish some time to resume the interrupted fight and hence would rather keep everything in readiness for prompt action.--New York Post.
